

---

The Two Very Best Friends

Joshua Mays

Mrs. Lacey Handwerk/Mrs. Booth

Orrville Elementary School

Grade 3

Can you imagine not being able to hang out with your friend or not being able to play with them just because they are a different skin color. In the book, The Other Side, Clover and Annie couldn't play together because there was a tall fence separating them. The fence was there to separate the blacks and whites because of segregation.

It was difficult for Clover and Annie to be friends. The tall fence made it very hard for Clover and Annie to be friends. Clover's and Annie's mom told them to not to go over the fence because they thought it was dangerous on the other side. The last reason they could not go over the fence was because they lived when segregation was a thing.

Clover and Annie wanted to be friends. One reason they wanted to be friends is that they liked to play together. They were very brave. Even though they knew they weren't supposed to play together, they did. They knew that segregation was the wrong thing to do. Clover and Annie wanted to be friends because they thought everyone should be able to play with each other.

There was a tall fence in the story. That tall fence was there in the story to stand for segregation at that time. The tall fence was also there to separate the colored people and the white people. I hate the tall fence because it stood for segregation and segregation was the wrong thing to do.

I learned that if there is a law that you think shouldn't be, try to do something to change that law. It does not matter what skin color you are, everybody should be treated the same no matter what.